Vince Colosimo has spoken out for the first time since he was convicted and fined for driving with a suspended licence and under the influence of ice in 2017.

The 51-year-old Underbelly star told The Courier Mail on Wednesday that he is 'enjoying work and life'.

Vince said that he found shooting his latest film The Second a 'distraction' from everything that was going on in his personal life last year.

Making headlines: In November, Vince had been convicted and fined for driving through Melbourne's CBD while suspended and under the influence of the illegal drug ice. Pictured at court in Melbourne on November 3rd

In November, Vince had been convicted and fined for driving through Melbourne's CBD while suspended and under the influence of the illegal drug ice.

He pleaded guilty in Melbourne Magistrates' Court after being charged with driving on a suspended licence with the drug in his system, when stopped and tested on March 5th 2017.

He said nothing in court, except to acknowledge that he understood the penalty.

Copping it: He said nothing in court, except to acknowledge that he understood the penalty

Magistrate David Starvaggi convicted and fined him $3,500. He also cancelled his licence for five months.

It was the third time that Vince had been caught driving on a suspended license, The Age previously reported.

The magistrate said that even a child in kindergarten could understand the issue of driving under the influence.

'You're building a nice little history for yourself here,' he said. 'You're risking a jail term... if you're back here for a fourth time it won't be pretty.'

Vince had to pay some court costs, as well as the fine and five-month license suspension.
